NATIONAL CHRISTIAN COLLEGE ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The NCCAA was incorporated in 1968 to provide a Christian-based organization that functions uniquely as a national and international agency for the promotion of ministry and outreach and for the maintenance, promotion and enhancement of intercollegiate athletic competition with a Christian perspective.

Over 100 Christian colleges and universities comprise the NCCAA involving approximately 8,000 student-athletes and 500 coaches. A combined total of 14 national championships in men's and women's sports is sponsored by the NCCAA.

The very existence of the NCCAA addresses the need for a unique plan to encourage Christian distinctives in the lives of young men and women in a day where the foundations of our society are being greatly challenged. The NCCAA wants to vigorously promote Christian ethics and purpose of life through athletics within the membership.

The NCCAA is committed to:

1. supporting coaches and their institutions in a plan that will impact the lives of student-athletes for Christ in the present as well as in the future.
2. challenging the student-athlete via district and national competition.
3. enabling student-athletes to participate in intercultural outreach ministries through missions.
4. expecting academic excellence.
5. encouraging Christians to be able to best serve family, school, church, and our world.
6. making a positive impact in developing the leaders of tomorrow.

Programs and services are developed by dedicated coaches, athletic directors, college presidents, the National Office staff, and the Board of Directors.

District and national competition is offered in both men's and women's sports. Tournament participants are encouraged to participate in local outreach ministries in those areas where the tournament competition takes place. International competition is being promoted with emphasis on ministry and missions.

The NCCAA is a nonprofit organization whose financial support comes from donors who are excited about the educational, athletic and spiritual opportunities for young people at Christian colleges and universities. Young men and women are making life long decisions today about spiritual, social and family choices that are important to them and to those with whom they come in contact.

The NCCAA believes that students' lives are changed when given the opportunity to witness for Christ on summer mission trips. It is our desire to raise more funds in order to assist student-athletes in visiting other countries to witness for Jesus Christ. This experience will affect the lives of the students tremendously as well as impact the lives of those to whom they minister.

Member colleges are dedicated to providing quality education from a Biblical perspective. Christian young men and women are encouraged through the NCCAA to prepare for a life of meaningful work and service exemplifying Jesus Christ through Bible study and prayer.

The NCCAA believes that athletics are a means to an end and that the process is as important as the performance.

The National Office of the NCCAA is located in Marion, Indiana.

NCCAA NATIONAL DIVISION I WOMEN'S BASKETBALL TOURNEY HISTORY

by Steve Hilbelink-National Women's Basketball Statistician

The NCCAA national women's basketball tourney was initiated in 1983 as an invitational at Tennessee Temple University in Chattanooga, Tennessee. It was a dual tournament as eight division one and four division two teams squared off in separate tournaments at the same site. On the afternoon of March 10, 1983, John Brown University defeated Marion College in the first NCCAA national women's tournament game ever. By the evening, four teams were eliminated and headed home in the single elimination tourney. In the finals, Spring Arbor College defeated the host Tennessee Temple team 55-52 for the first national title.

In 1984 at Tennessee Temple University, eight division one and six division two teams participated in the second national invitational. Each team was guaranteed two games in the 1984 format and it solidified the tourney field. In division I play, Spring Arbor nearly defended their title but lost the championship game to Mideast district rival Huntington College.

In 1985, the site was changed to Cedarville College in Cedarville, Ohio for a division one tourney which played out all eight places. It marked the first time that a west coast team (Azusa Pacific University) participated and the first time it was fully sanctioned as a national championship. Lee College of Tennessee, who had played in the two previous tourneys, won their first national championship.

In 1986 at Cedarville College, the competition was the tightest ever as four of the twelve games were decided by three or less points. The host Cedarville squad battled the seeds to play Evangel College in the finals but lost 80-68 in the championship game.

In 1987, the tourney moved to Trinity Christian College in suburban Chicago, Illinois. Both Lee College and Spring Arbor College survived tight first round games en route to their title contest. In a very close contest, Spring Arbor became the first school with two titles as they posted a 59-56 win.

In 1988 at Trinity Christian College, the tourney boasted the first time in which all seven districts sent a representative as Concordia College of Oregon made the Northwest district's first appearance. It also marked the initial appearance by King College of Tennessee who has become a perennial powerhouse of NCCAA women's basketball. Both Concordia and King posted close wins to advance to the finals but King won the title by a slight 73-68 margin.

In 1989, the tourney moved to Lee College in Cleveland, Tennessee. While King easily advanced to the championship game, the host Lee College team was upset in the semifinals by Cedarville 67-66. King became the first repeat champion with an 87-78 victory over Cedarville College.

Women's Basketball Tournament History Cont'd

In 1990, King College and the host Lee College team defended their seeds to advance to the finals. In front of the tourney's largest crowd ever, the King College Tornadoes made it three consecutive national championships with a 62-60 overtime victory over the Lee College Lady Flames. Tabor College from the Southwest district played very well in their first appearance and laid claim as the next challenger to the two Tennessee schools at the top of the NCCAA.

In 1991, the tourney moved Bartlesville Wesleyan College in Bartlesville, Oklahoma. Huntington College moved to the top of the NCCAA as they defeated Tabor 67-60 in the championship game. Coach Lori Culler became the first person to win the NCCAA national tourney as player (1984) and as a coach. King was dethroned as champion but did finish in third place with a consolation win over district rival Lee College.

In 1992, Huntington returned to Bartlesville Wesleyan College to defend their title. They did so in exciting fashion edging newcomer Williams Baptist College 68-65 in the title game. Lee College finished in third place by nipping district rival Covenant College in the consolation game. This tourney broke virtually all three point shooting records as it features the best perimeter shooters in the history of the NCCAA women's basketball.

In 1993, the tourney moved to Concordia College in Ann Arbor, Michigan and a new champion was to be crowned as Huntington played in the NAIA. The 1992 runner-up Williams Baptist College earned their first national championship defeating NCCAA newcomer Oakland City College 81-69. Lee College snatched third place for the second straight year by defeating Trinity Christian in the consolation game and set a new three game scoring record (272 points) in the process.

In the eleven years of the NCCAA Division I national women's basketball tourney, no team has made the elite eight every season though Lee has only missed on one occasion. Thirty-three of the NCCAA's forty-five Division I members have been involved in the national tourney with Concordia College being the sixth school to host the tourney.

The NCCAA Division I is comprised of 55 liberal arts Christian colleges from throughout the country. The forty-five women's basketball programs are divided into seven geographical districts at which level the qualifiers for the national tourney are chosen.

How to open up your career potential.

Not long ago, Gary Pedersen took stock of his career situation. Through years of work experience, he had gained valuable technical knowledge. But Gary knew he needed something else to be a more effective manager — a B.A. degree.

By enrolling in the Center for Adult Education and attending one evening class a week, Gary completed his B.A. in just 15 months. It was challenging work. But Gary achieved his goal without sacrificing his full-time job and family responsibilities.

After earning his B.A. in Human Resources Administration, Gary was promoted to Body Manufacturing Superintendent by GM to supervise a department of 480 employees.

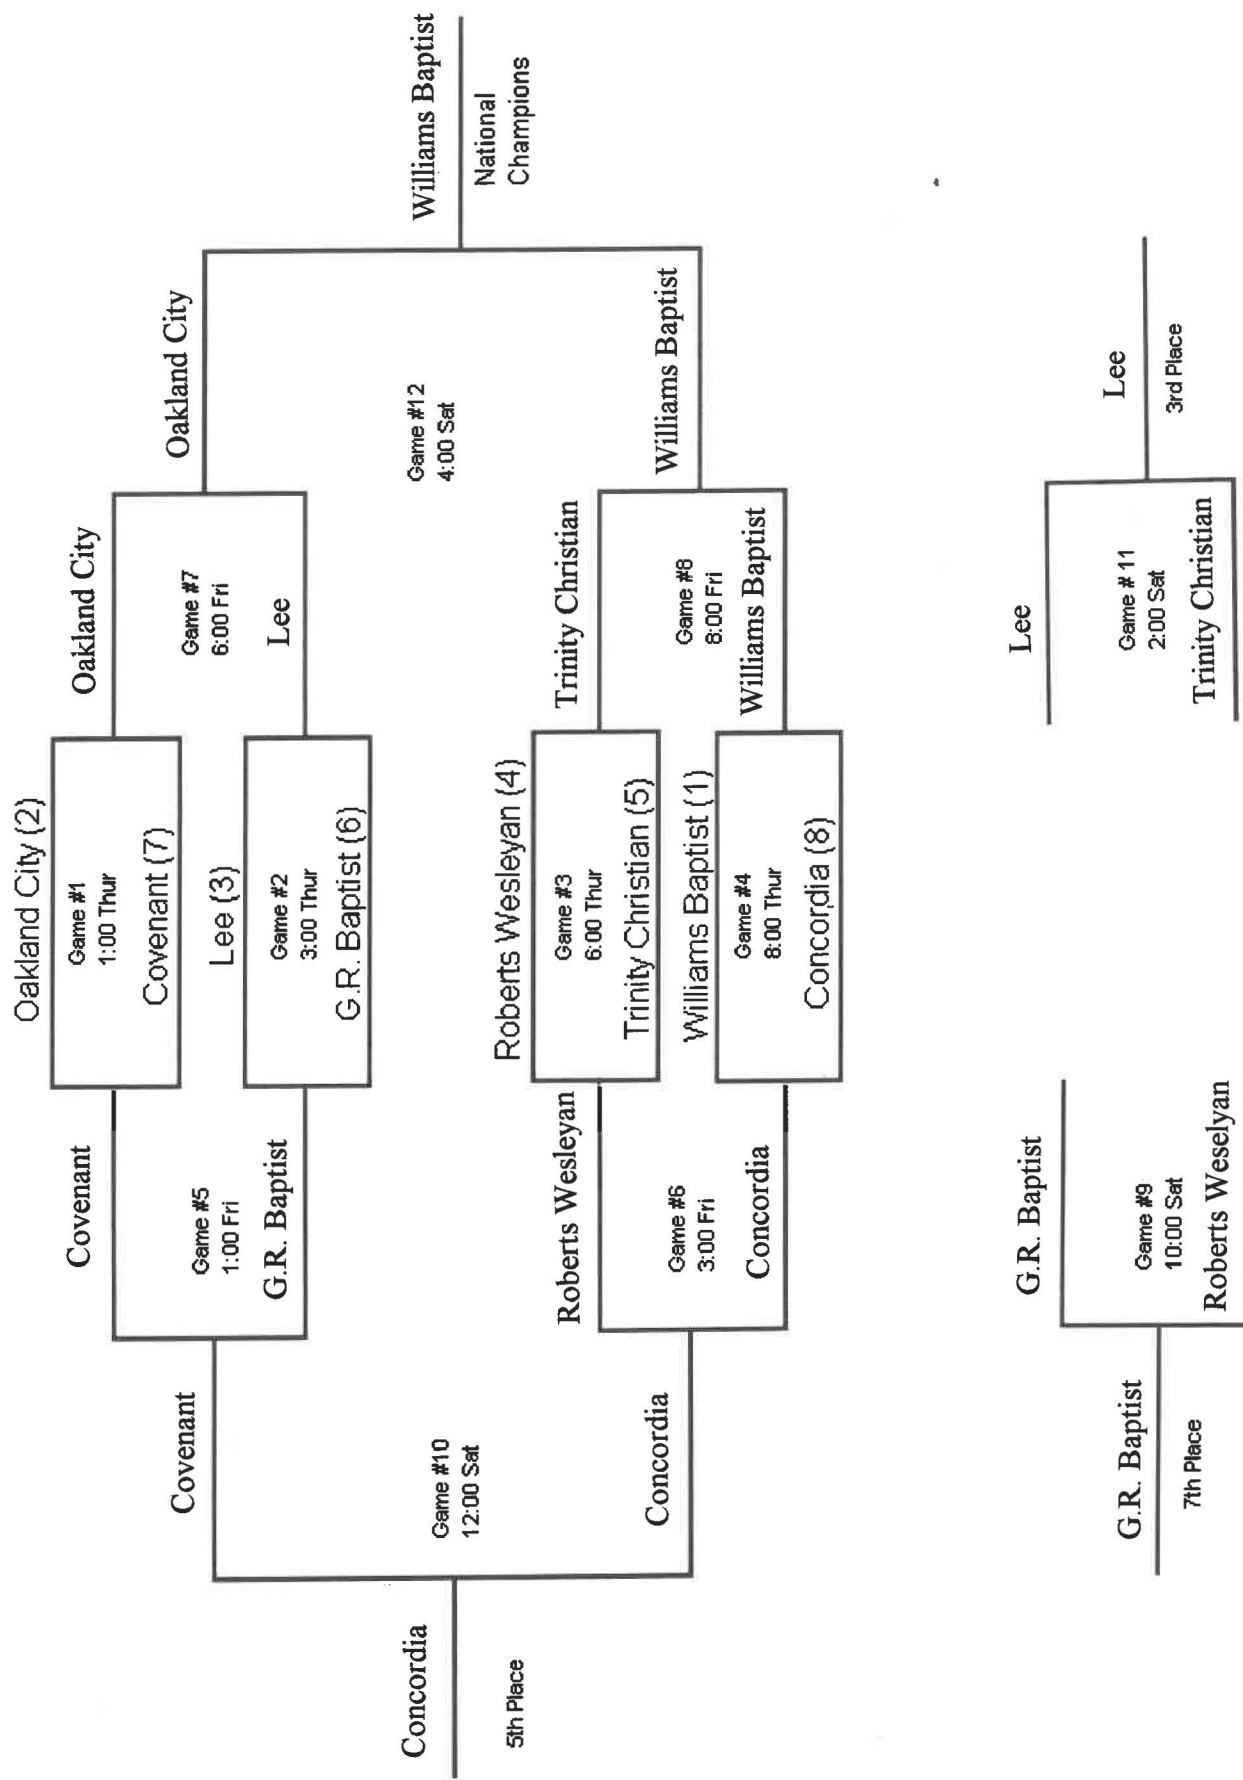

If you have two years of college credit, and you'd like to complete your B.A. for a promotion, career change, graduate school or personal development, call 1-800-327-4818 today.

After all, isn't it time to open the door to your future?

Concordia College is accredited by the North Central Association and admits students of any race, religion, and national or ethnic origin.
